

From Cold Within

Revision 1.1

When the Domineum fell, the noble and honorable Great Houses—loyal for so long to the Novarchs—rose up together to stamp out the Voidborn incursion until only the embers remained. But for their valor these Houses paid a toll from which they could not recover. The Houses that now remain with their strength in tact are those who held back, secure in the knowledge that from the wreckage of the Voidfall must rise a new ruling House. Might you lead just such a House? Do what even the Voidborn could not: vanquish all who oppose your claim to the throne of the New Domineum.

